Open Education: Why not?

Alex Lehr

Why not? Some ideas…

Lack of incentives: no recognition, no rewards

Unclear benefits: who's going to use this anyway

Fear of exposure and misuse: flaws, sensitive topics

Job security & redundancy: outsourcing, automation & competition

Practical barriers: time constraints, unfamiliar systems and concepts, copyright issues

Why do it anyway?

Practical incentives: using the available tools, managing collective pressures collectively

Personal incentives: why let your hard work go to waste

Individual & collective improvement: exposure of flaws, raising the bar

Countering inequalities: not everyone has access to quality materials

Values: open societies need open knowledge, publicly funded → publicly available

Defensive transparency: it's a scary world out there

Final thoughts

Sharing is caring?

Yes, but:

Don’t assume that goodwill, values and appeals to solidarity etc.
can overcome lacking incentives, infrastructure and support
